Familial Peace: Diverse Perspectives is a description and exposition of one of the most remarkable issues like Familial Peace. So many principles have made and being made in order to establish familial peace. Multiple changes occur in the society from time to time but in the recent decades family has been attacked by some complex problems and due to them we are witnessing the shattering phenomenon of families. This is a grave issue that the foundation stone called family is in flux today. Luxury, materialism, individualism and free life style are getting priority because of the so-called modernity. And this has made the modern families weak and unstable in the comparison of ancient families. As there is no substantial adjustment for the families, they are deteriorating. To stop the family deterioration and reconstruct families are very much essential from individual, social and national point of view. Thus, the book presents a comprehensive solution to the above problem backed up by Anekanta. It will definitely serve the purpose of a good reference book for both the researchers and teachers involved in the non-violent and peace studies.
